GENERATIONS

CONFLICT RESOLUTION TACTICS

Take No Action

- Despite differing viewpoints, people continue to make progress on goals.
- Those involved feel little or no impact from the conflict on the working relationship.
- There is little or no impact on productivity or morale.
- The people involved have the skills to resolve the conflict.
- The people involved are willing to resolve the conflict, even if differences are escalating.

Coach

- Differing viewpoints are slowing progress toward goals.
- There is some negative impact on morale and working relationships.
- At least one person seems willing and able to work it out.
- The parties have asked for your help in resolving the conflict.
- The people involved are capable of resolving it, but are not taking steps to do so or lack confidence, and you want to encourage one of them to take the lead.

Mediate

- There is a noticeable drop in productivity and a disruptive effect on morale and working relationships.
- Communication is guarded or nonexistent.
- The people involved have reached a stalemate and are struggling to work out the problem.
- Prior resolution attempts by the people involved have failed, but they still want resolution.
- Coaching didn't work, and the situation is escalating.

Take Charge

- Productivity and progress are at a standstill.
- Morale, trust, and/or teamwork are at an all-time low.
- The parties have shut down.
- Attempts to coach and to mediate have failed.
- You are concerned about others' physical safety or emotional well-being.
